IN THE NAVY

Rear-Admiral Walter Hose, RCN (Retired), 82, a former Chief of Naval Staff, returned to sea recently in the ultra modern destroyer escort, HMCS St. Laurent, and liked what he saw. Admiral Hose served as Chief of Naval Staff from 1920 until 1934.

Taking passage in the ship from Halifax to the United Kingdom, he spoke to the ship's company at Sunday divisions and came to the defence of "the true Nelson tradition". He said that despite the great changes which have taken place in almost every branch of Canadian naval technique, the "Nelson tradition" is not dead.

Admiral Hose said that only those who had been associated with the RCN during its early period of trials and difficulties could experience the gratification he felt in seeing the "splendid development" in Esquimaux, Halifax, the RCN (Reserve) Divisions and now at sea in one of HMC Ships.

"From what I have seen of our navy," said the Admiral, "and not least from what I have seen in Her Majesty's Canadian Ship St. Laurent, what was known as the 'Nelson tradition' is evidently not dead."

"It was Admiral Nelson who realized that what was called 'discipline' in the fleet of that day was a harsh and arbitrary exercise of authority, and he set to work in every ship and squadron he commanded to translate the word 'discipline' into 'efficiency, consideration, understanding' — in other words 'team work' — and so enabled him to say he had the honour to command a 'band of brothers'."

"That is the 'Nelson tradition,'" added Admiral Hose, "that and nothing else, and I am convinced it is that spirit which has made the Royal Canadian Navy the splendidly efficient force that it is; the joy of those who are in it, and the pride of the country it serves."

IN THE ARMY

Stained-glass windows in eight Canadian churches in Germany will be permanent mementos of churches of the 2nd Canadian Infantry Brigade Group.

Last winter the congregations of Roman Catholic and four Protestant churches located in the forts of Canada's NATO Brigade began contributing funds to provide stained-glass windows for the churches they attend.

Enough money was contributed by members to provide two windows each for most of the chapels. The Protestant chapels are fitted with both decorative windows and windows depicting religious scenes. The stained-glass windows for the Roman Catholic churches are emblematic and symbolic in character. Each window cost about three hundred dollars.

The windows were made by a German firm which has fulfilled similar commissions for the Vatican in Rome. A different artist executed the design for each window. The stained-glass windows will be carried out during the next few weeks before the units of the Brigade return to Canada on rotation.

Major Harold Merklinger, Waterloo, Ont., senior Protestant Chaplain and Major J. E. Lavioie, senior Roman Catholic Chaplain of the Brigade are arranging details of the services.

An additional ceremony will be performed at St. Mark's chapel on Sunday when a memorial plaque will be unveiled to the memory of members of the 1st Battalion, The Royal Canadian Regiment, who have died while serving in Germany. When St. Boniface, the Roman Catholic chapel at Fort York, holds dedication services for its stained-glass windows a similar memorial plaque will also be unveiled there.

IN THE RCAF

The RCAF's two Comet jet transports in the United Kingdom for modifications for the past year, returned to their home base at RCAF Station Uplands, Ottawa, last Thursday. It has been announced by the RCAF.

The two aircraft were flown back to Canada by RCAF crews of 412 Transport Squadron, Uplands, via Iceland. Skipping the aircraft were Flight Lieutenant P. M. Lemieux of Maniwaki, P.Q. and Flight Lieutenant W. B. Carrs of Flin Flon, Man.

The RCAF placed the two Comets in service in May and June, 1953, being then the world's first air force to fly jet transports. They both saw continuous service with 412 Squadron until being withdrawn from flying in January, 1954, following the overseas accidents to Comets in commercial airline operations.

Some modifications were made to the aircraft in Canada but in August, 1956 the Comets were flown to the UK by De Havilland crews for major modifications, to ensure their airworthiness.

These modifications, carried out at the De Havilland plant in the UK, have been finished and the two transports are now certified as fully airworthy. The modifications, costing $400,000 for each aircraft, primarily involved re-forecasting of the airframe.

RCAF air and ground crew have spent several months in the UK taking intensive training on the maintenance and flying of the aircraft. The two Comets will be flown by 412 Squadron, and will be used for general transport work, including domestic passenger transport. They will also serve a valuable purpose in exercising the air defence system through high-speed, high-altitude flights simulating bomber runs.

The Comets are powered by four Ghost "50" jet engines, each with 5000 lb. thrust. With a payload of 12,000 lb. they have a range of 2500 miles at a cruising speed of 455

Bride In The Kitchen

A twenty-first birthday, an important new film part, and a wedding all combine to make this an outstanding summer for Susan Beaumont.

The film part — Liz in INNOCENT SINNERS, which starts shooting at Pinewood this week.

The wedding some time next month — to Arthur Solomon, dark-haired serious-eyed young South African, who is also in show business... he is a principal dancer.

"We've known each other for ages and like exactly the same things, which is a good start!" Susan said happily. "And we've been lucky enough to find an unfurnished flat... we're starting off with loads of white paint, pale-grey carpets and a host of do-it-yourself ideas!"

Pretty, blonde Susan is not stranger to home-making; right at the beginning of her film career she made over the top floor of her parents' Hampstead house into a "penthouse flat" which she decorated and furnished entirely by her own choice. There she could entertain friends and fix meals for them without disturbing the rest of the household. (Teenagers anxious to leave home might try copying this idea instead!)

Her cooking, Susan admits cheerfully, is still rather in the "supper-snack" stage but fortunately Arthur likes to dabbe in the kitchen too. Under his advice Susan's been busy experimenting with South African dishes. Like this one, for example... KOOL FRICKED!

You'll need 1-lb minced meat, 2 eggs, 1-oz butter, salt, pepper and a good dash of grated nutmeg, 2-lbs. diced beef or mutton and several large cabbage leaves. Mix together all ingredients save the diced meat and then scald the leaves in boiling water. Put some of the mixture in the centre of each leaf and fold into "envelopes". Braise the diced meat, add a cupful of boiling water and pack the filled leaves on top of the meat so that they fit tightly into the pan. Cook until the meat underneath is tender.

And if you happen to have a grapevine growing in your window-box, try grape leaves instead of cabbage!

Here Mr. Guy Gaucher (left), owner of Laflamme Fourriere, giving Dr. Jean Marc Morin, president of the Richelieu Club, a $200 cheque which will be used to help needy children in Drummondville. The money was raised in connection with a recent fashion show.

Mr. Armand Toupin Re-Elected President.

The members of the Drummondville Businessmen Association has proceeded to their annual elections last Monday. As foreseen, Mr. Armand Toupin has been re-elected for second mandate. Mr. Toupin will be helped by Mr. Romeo E. Adam, elected vice-president. Directors are: Charles Doucet, Andre Melancon and Miss Imelda Fortin. Mr. Paul Turgeon has been confirmed as secretary-treasurer.

The Association took the occasion of filing a request to the municipal council to have the new parking lot lighted as soon as possible. Further, according to the Association, the City should insure maintenance of the said lot and see that it should be well advertised. Practically 150 automobiles can be parked on the new spot, which will be inaugurated in a near future.

As to the elections, they were held under the supervision of Mr. Jules Sirois, A.C., assisted by Mr. Albert Marier as secretary.

The Birth of the Buick in Canada

Oshawa, Ont. — Canadian automotive history was made fifty years ago this week — the birth of the Buick in Canada. It was on October 3rd, 1907, that three dignified men drove in a carriage from the Oshawa railway station to the offices of the McLaughlin Carriage Company to present a contract that was to change the destiny of Oshawa, and perhaps all Canada.

One was William C. Durant, general manager of the Buick Motor Company, Flint, Michigan. With him were two of his top executives. They had come in answer to a wire from R. S. McLaughlin, son of the president of the McLaughlin Carriage Company and today the dean of the automobile industry in Canada. The McLaughlin engineer was ill and "Mr. Sam" had asked his old friend "Billy" Durant to lend him an engineer. The McLaughlin automobile was due to go into production in two days.

Durant arrived, not with an engineer, but with a contract. In five minutes, the contract was settled. It covered the terms under which the McLaughlin Motor Company had 15-year rights to buy the Buick engine and some other parts. The McLaughlins would design and build the bodies themselves.

The international "swapping" will operate on a goodwill free exchange basis, without funds changing hands.

The American television networks will carry CBC-TV coverage of the arrival of the royal party at Ottawa's Uplands airport at approximately 4:30 p.m., EDT, October 12, plus coverage of the Speech from the Throne which the Queen will read when Parliament is opened October 14.

Some U.S. networks will also use CBC-TV coverage of the royal drive through Ottawa, the arrival at Rideau Hall and the Opening of Parliament ceremony. On Sunday, October 13, at 9:00 p.m. EDT, television will use CBC coverage of the Queen's speech from Rideau Hall.

In addition CBC film of the royal visit to Canada will be made available to the U.S. television networks and to British and other television centres throughout the world.

Radio coverage follow much the same pattern. NBC-Radio's week-end long "Monitor" program will carry live and delayed broadcasts directly from Ottawa.

U.S. radio networks will have all CBC radio programs of the royal visit at their disposal.

TV Tuners

Port Credit, Ont., Sept. 25 — A new disc-type VHF television tuner is now in production at the Port Credit plant of Canadian Admiral Corporation. The new cascade tuner, more sensitive than the conventional type, uses a high percentage of Canadian-produced parts.

Specifications of this first Canadian-made car, the famous Model F McLaughlin, included a 90-inch wheelbase; 30 by four-inch tires; tilting column, pinion and sector steering; internal expanding brakes; three-fourths elliptic springs in the rear; angle steel frame; double opposed cylinder, 22 horsepower engine; water cooling; jump spark ignition; mechanical power feed, gear driven lubrication and planetary transmission — two speeds forward and one reverse.

The McLaughlin Model F had spark and throttle levers on top of the wheel on an immovable sector; a wide surface, positive action cone clutch and chain drive. The carburetor was of simple design and a storage battery, with a set of dry cells in reserve, supplied the ignition current. Everything except the engine was made in Oshawa. In 1909 the Buick name was added to make it the famed McLaughlin-Buick.

Not long after the agreement with the McLaughlins, Durant started to acquire control of Oakland (predecessor of the Pontiac), Oldsmobile, Cadillac and other automobile and parts manufacturers. From these various companies Durant formed General Motors Corporation. The McLaughlin Motor Company became a part of the Corporation in 1918 as General Motors of Canada, Limited, with R. S. McLaughlin as President. He was also named a Director and Vice-President of the Corporation, positions he still holds in his 87th year as well as being Chairman of the Board of the Canadian company, after having served as President until 1945.

The Royal Visit to Ottawa

Canadian American radio and television networks will exchange programs during the royal visit to North America October 12 to 21.

While the Queen and Prince Philip are in Canada, the CBC will supply live or recorded radio and TV programs to the CBS, NBC, ABC and Mutual networks. When the royal party visits the U.S., these networks will feed coverage to the CBC.

The international "swapping" will operate on a goodwill free exchange basis, without funds changing hands.

The American television networks will carry CBC-TV coverage of the arrival of the royal party at Ottawa's Uplands airport at approximately 4:30 p.m., EDT, October 12, plus coverage of the Speech from the Throne which the Queen will read when Parliament is opened October 14.

Use of Vaccine

The recent National Immunization Week was given emphasis by an article entitled "Victory Over Polio" written especially for the current issue of Health Magazine, official publication of the Health League of Canada, by Dr. E. H. Lossing and Mrs. E. Whitridge. Dr. Lossing is Chief, Epidemiology Division, National Health and Welfare, and Mrs. Whitridge is Technical Information Officer, Epidemiology Division, Department of National Health and Welfare.

"No case of paralytic poliomyelitis has occurred in any child in Canada where the vaccine was considered to be responsible" the article states. "Because it contains all three types of poliomyelitis virus, the Salk vaccine is known as a trivalent vaccine. In order to be effective, it must contain all three types of virus since infection with one type does not necessarily provide immunity against attack by one of the other types."

"The first two injections are given with an interval of approximately four weeks. In order to ensure maximum effect, a third booster dose of the vaccine is given after a period of at least seven months. This third dose enables the individual to activate a 'booster mechanism' so that when exposed to the disease, his body is able to quickly produce antibodies in sufficient quantity to prevent the poliomyelitis virus from reaching the central nervous system, thus causing paralysis."

The article points out that poliomyelitis is no longer a disease confined to the young. "More and more cases are occurring in the adult population, and it is now not unusual for young adults to be severely stricken. In recent years approximately one-third of all paralytic cases and over 50% of the deaths from poliomyelitis occurred in those aged twenty and over."

"Up to the present time approximately four million Canadian children have been vaccinated, although with the exception of pregnant women and certain hazardous occupational groups, few vaccinations will have been given to persons over twenty years of age."

"As results indicate that the vaccine is both safe and effective, it is hoped that the program will be extended in the near future to include every person in Canada under the age of forty. Within a few years poliomyelitis may become a disease as rare as smallpox, which has completely disappeared in Canada since the use of widespread vaccinations," the article concludes.

Lips, the Most Vivid Accent

In sabon thot's practically a riot of fabulous color it is Helena Rubinstein's conviction that lips should be the most vivid accent of all. So she has introduced a new flaming lipstick shade called "Playing With Fire", as the perfect accent to the marvellous new greens, reds and the stained-glass window blues and reds. An essential contrast to the new soft beiges and whole gamut of browns. Indispensable with the always-wonderful blacks. A brilliant highlight to the luxurious furs that are seen everywhere this season.

Helena Rubinstein herself declares: "The new heightened femininity demands vivid color at the lips and on the cheeks. My new lipstick color, Playing With Fire, will give exactly the right look to the lips and skilful blending of my liquid rouge in harmonizing hue will give the soft rounded look to the face that sets the look of the new season."

Madame Rubinstein has given careful consideration to the texture, she has now added a new moisturizing ingredient that softens the lips instantly and protects their tender tissues from drying.

"Playing With Fire" comes in all the stunning new 1958 "Convertible" cases, too. Black enamel or golden metal; silver and pastel shades; golden and silver mesh effect for evenings.

Other Good Prospects, According to Mr. George Haggerty.

Industrial boom commenced by both the municipal council and the Chamber of Commerce of Drummondville seems to be continuous at least for a while, according to Mr. George Haggerty, president of the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Haggerty refused to give details to reporters but admitted he has a couple of good prospects. "We may well have interesting surprises," Mr. Haggerty added yesterday.

Meanwhile machinery is being installed at the new St. Pierre plant, which was leased by Temple

Sherbrooke Winter Show

Entries are arriving daily for the Sherbrooke Winter Show, the dates are: Oct. 7-8-9-10th. The Directors wish to catalogue all pure bred cattle entries. Therefore, it is important for exhibitors to mail their entries at once.

Yanks Bow To Lou Burdette

A former Yankee pitcher, Lou Burdette, fired screwballs, sinkers and sliders yesterday afternoon at New York stadium to even the World Series 1-1 by defeating the mighty Stengel's toupers by 4 to 2 in a game far better than the first won by the Yankees 3 to 1 Wednesday. Yesterday, the Milwaukee Braves fanned three in a row before tiny Bobby Schantz but not long. A three-bagger by Hank Aaron and a single by Joe Adcock opened the score in the second. The Yanks tied the score but were never in front till the end of the game.

The sensational catch by West Covington in the left on a liner of Bobby Schantz with two on added flavor to a colored game seen by 65,000 fans. Johnny Logan and Hank Bauer sparked homers at the beginning; meanwhile big canons like Mickey Mantle and Yoki Berra were silenced by competent Burdette.

The series will now be resumed at Milwaukee tomorrow afternoon at 3 p.m. and nobody can say what is in the hat.

Be Vigilant & You'll Live

Eternal vigilance, as every smart and prudent farmer in Canada knows, is the price of fire prevention. Otherwise, the fruits of months of toil and the profits of years may vanish.

For every Canadian, and particularly for the thousands now enjoying suburban or country living, without the "round-the-corner" protection of a civic or full-time fire department, what the fire-wise farmer does to avoid giving fire a place to start is worth a good hard look:

1. Lightning. See that the rods are well and truly grounded. If their use has an insurance benefit, it is imperative that the installation and grounding comply with provincial regulation.
2. Gasoline. The smart operator never re-fuels a hot motor; spilled gas can go "boom" in his face. The same goes for a power lawnmower; if the "little woman" or the kids like to trim the grass while you doze in a hammock, don't you owe it to them that they get a safety lesson on gasoline hazards?

3. Matches and smoking. Not to be tolerated in any circumstance around a barn or dry fields. Warning signs on the subject are available freely for the asking from a variety of sources. The owner who puts them up and sees that they are heeded, rates a bow from the volunteer fire brigade. If you must start even a small grass fire, put as much thought into its organization and its control as though you were Montgomery at El Tlamain. There's nothing more frightening (and harder on the neighbors' nerves) than a grass fire out of control.

4. Electricity. The "do-it-yourself" amateur is asking for trouble when he works in this department. Be an expert or get one for the job. And play the game with the power commission by insisting, too, on a final inspection.

The best protection against fire in areas off the beaten track lies in prevention against fire starting. The suburbanite who faces up to the four danger zones above will be less likely to have to face fire from any quarter in his quiet enjoyment of life in the country.

Oil Boom Fases

Things are starting to tighten up all along the line in the boom-expanded Canadian oil industry, says W.L. Dack in The Financial Post.

The tighten-up is setting in much earlier than most oilmen expected. The industry is still busy, but signs point toward a sag in our postwar oil boom.

1—First, it was loss of the California export market.

2—Next, there was the recent modest decline in demand from other U.S. export outlets in mid-northern and Pacific Northwest states.

3—New the steadily rising domestic demand trend has started to flatten out.

A Post survey of leading oil marketers reveals a somewhat disappointing July and August, the heaviest motoring months of the year. Actually, however Canadian oil consumption is still ahead of last year but not by the comfortable 7%-10.0% margin which had been for even as late as March of this year.

Saturday night, the local post office staff and many friends of the hero paid a fine tribute to an old employee, Mr. Alphonse Tousignant, who retires after many years of loyal services. From left to right: Bruno Aubin, Paul Tousignant, Alphonse Tousignant, Charles Lupien, post office master, Lucien Courchesne, Georges Roy; second row: Lionel Proulx, P. E. Bellemar, Claude Boisvert, Walter Schaffeler, Benjamin Robidas, Leo Loiselle, Gerard Roussel, Ro'and Proulx, C. E. Girard and Omer Letarte.

Qualification For Citizenship By C. J. Harris Canadian daily newspapers of September 3rd carried two major "labour" stories. The most space was devoted to the Labour Day speech in Toronto of Mr. Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labour Congress, and his headline statement that strikebreakers are "not good material for Canadian citizenship."

Empty Honor

On the financial page of a metropolitan newspaper the other day appeared two items, unrelated in origin but closely related in subject. One, a Canadian Press report from Ottawa, stated that "Canada led the world in trade last year on a per capita basis. Canada held this top spot in 1953 but lost it to New Zealand in 1954."

The other item, also a Canadian Press report and also dealing with matters of trade and commerce, although with none of the optimism reflected in the first item, originated in the Ontario city of Peterborough and announced the September closing of a local textile mill. "The 46-year-old mill," said the story, "has been reducing operations and staff for some years. About five years ago 300 were employed there; a year ago the figure had dropped to 165. The mill's spinning operation will be moved...

did not make a speech, as Mr. Jodoin had a few hours earlier, but he did make this comment to a newspaper interviewer: "They know who to get. I was in the union but last June 12 I led the first group of 20 who went back to work."

Of course there was no legal evidence to support Mr. Mead's assumption that his home was subject to attack because he had returned to his job in a strike-bound plant. But there appears to have been no doubt in his mind. First he had received threatening telephone calls, then an attempt had been made to force his car off the road, and finally a Molotov cocktail set his home ablaze. According to police the device would have destroyed the building except for the circumstance that a neighbor sitting up late to watch television saw the firebomb explode and promptly called police.

As a union member who, disagreeing with his union's policy, returned to work while a strike was in progress, Mr. Mead presumably would qualify for Mr. Jodoin's definition of a strikebreaker, and thus as a person who is "not good material for Canadian citizenship."

It might seem to most Canadians that Mr. Jodoin fits the shoe on the wrong foot, that if any person in Canada lacks the qualifications for good citizenship it would be the one who would toss the bomb rather than the one at whom it was tossed.

to Hoopler, site of the company's last remaining mill. Plants at Orillia and Malton have also closed in recent years. The company said its textile industry in Canada has been severely depressed during the past few years due to the influx of low-priced imports.

The position of first rank in the world in per capita trade would be an enviable one had been achieved on a basis of balanced imports and exports. But a glance at the figures makes it obvious that in 1956 Canada gained top ranking only because of a disproportionate increase in the volume of exports. Nor is the increasing quantum of imports the sole factor to be considered in measuring the relative worth of Canada's 1956 rank in international trade. As has been pointed out in Peterborough, Orillia, Malton and other cities and towns could testify.

Most of the products sold on the Canadian market by foreign producers in the Ontario city of Peterborough and announced the September closing of a local textile mill. "The 46-year-old mill," said the story, "has been reducing operations and staff for some years. About five years ago 300 were employed there; a year ago the figure had dropped to 165. The mill's spinning operation will be moved...

Witt is quoted by the Maclean's article as saying, "Unlike professional politicians, do not develop... callousness. Injustices or persecuting in their tendency to introversion." In part, the third farewell letter quoted by the article reads, "My Christian faith, never strong enough, I fear, has helped sustain me in these last days."

Poor Pedestrian

When he finally regains his normal consciousness, he decides that halfway down the block he would have been the only one to have been hit with complete stops coinciding with the lights at the end of the block. He ambles down there and crosses safely. But even this solution to his problem is being snatched away in many cities, where an eagle-eyed cop will hand him a ticket for jay walking.

There isn't much the poor pedestrian can do. The motorist will get him sooner. Very few do this admittedly, but the few who do find it most effective. They wait until the green light shows and the pedestrian is about to cross, they inch along until they are about six feet from the kerb, and then come to a dead stop.

CANADIAN RADAR ASSUMES NEW IMPORTANCE

This global chart outlines the U.S.-Canadian early detection system which would give the best chances for survival in the event that Russia should launch an attack in some future intercontinental ballistic missile "push-button war." The Russians have already announced they have tested successfully an ICBM, capable of carrying a nuclear warhead. The U.S. air force also has announced that its first intercontinental missile squad will be organized by late this year. All of which means that the world has taken its first step into the age of push-button warfare.

Protest Against Accusations Toronto. - The character, background and philosophic convictions of Herbert Norman, Canadian ambassador to Egypt who committed suicide in Cairo six months ago, lead to and reinforce the conviction that his act was a dramatic protest against repeated accusations of Communist affiliations made in Canada by a U.S. Senate Committee of investigation, Maclean's Magazine contends.

A Cooperative Nursery School

Two young mothers from the Toronto suburb of Applewood Acres, Betty Dales and Phyl's Beaman, have had a four-and-a-half-year-old child who needed, they are going to nursery school. The solution they found, one that has worked for mothers in scores of other North American communities, was a cooperative nursery school. How they managed, in eight weeks, to organize that school is the subject of an article in the October issue of Maclean's Magazine.

In part, the third farewell letter quoted by the article reads, "My Christian faith, never strong enough, I fear, has helped sustain me in these last days."

INCREASES OUTPUT OF FLU VACCINE

At Connaught Laboratories in Toronto technicians are working steadily to produce vaccine to prevent Asiatic flu, now identified in British Columbia, Alberta, Ontario and Quebec. The vaccine, produced in eggs, will be used on key personnel in hospitals and vital communications first and it is not planned to have mass inoculations as medical authorities say the flu is seldom fatal and usually passes in three days. Dr. J. K. W. Ferguson of the Connaught Laboratories says that 500,000 doses of the vaccine could be produced in a month if necessary.

Sausage Scores at Breakfast Time

Serving plump, brown sausage links for breakfast gets the day off to a good start. There's nothing quite like meat to provide that stick-to-your-ribs satisfaction needed to see you through the morning's activities.

Sausage which has been prepared from carefully selected cuts of pork and a blend of "just right" seasonings will please every member of the family. To be sure that high quality and fine flavour is what you are getting, buy sausage links which carry a well-known packer's brand name. After purchase, store the sausage in the refrigerator and use within 2 or 3 days.

When cooking pork sausage links, pan-fry slowly until they are browned and thoroughly cooked. This will take 15 to 20 minutes. If you are going to cook a number of sausage links, baking them in the oven is the easy way to do it. Arrange the sausages in a shallow pan and bake in a hot oven (400°F) for about 20 minutes. You will want to turn the links once during the baking.

Sausage links go well with a wide variety of foods. Tender, fluffy pancakes are one such happy combination. Spiced applesauce, plenty of syrup or honey-butter for the pancakes and coffee or milk for a beverage completes a menu that's bound to please.

For Women

Menopause, a period often dreaded in a woman's life, is becoming a relatively simple malady, thanks to a new drug called TACE, reports Lawrence Galton in the October issue of Canadian Home Journal. A synthetic estrogen preparation, TACE gradually supplements the loss of natural estrogen from the body at this time. In nine out of ten cases of 150 women tested, the drug brought permanent relief after a 3-day period of treatment.

In the same issue, Mr. Galton tells of a new test, developed by the U.S. National Institute of Health, by which rheumatoid arthritis can be detected without delay. It reveals the disease within a few minutes, instead of the former prolonged period of days. The procedure is as simple as any blood test, and can be performed by a nurse on as many as 100 patients at a time.

Another new drug, penicillinase, will remove much of the popular trepidation about the use of penicillin, reports Mr. Galton. An anti-enzyme, penicillinase brings relief from the discomforting after-effects of penicillin. In the majority of cases studied at the U.S. Naval Hospital at Great Lakes, Ill., symptoms such as hives, itching, fever or gland difficulties were removed in the space of 24 hours.

1 Death Every Three Hours

A death every three hours and fourteen injuries every hour of the day took place in Canadian homes during 1956, said the Province of Quebec Safety League. These alarming statistics should make every head of the family and housekeepers think. The Province of Quebec Safety League invites each and every one to take all necessary steps in order to prevent home accidents during the week of October 6 to 12 th.

"Why shouldn't we take advantage of the current Home Safety Campaign in the home suggests George Kenney, President General of the Province of Quebec Safety League. A well kept house is one where there is safety and suggests to check the following hazards:-

- 1—Are your stairs and floors free of boxes, toys, mops, brooms and other tripping hazards?
  - 2—Do you keep cupboard doors closed so that one will not bump their head against them?
  - 3—Do you have skip-proof rugs in order to prevent falls?
  - 4—Do you apply floor wax properly and according to directions?
  - 5—Do you clean every spot of grease or other slippery substance at once?
  - 6—Is your fireplace well protected by a screen properly adjusted?
  - 7—Are your curtains far enough away from the stove so that they will not catch on fire?
  - 8—Are household objects properly stored away in your cupboard so they won't fall on you when opening the doors?
- "Your answers to the above, says Mr. George B. Kenney, will tell you what you have to do in order to bring safety to your home."

Mr. J. A. Pagé, president and general manager of Southern Canada Power Company Limited announces the appointment of Mr. E. L. Jowett, C.A., (left) as treasurer of the company succeeding Mr. T. Irving retiring, and of Mr. H. A. Ladouceur, C.A., as assistant-treasurer. Mr. Jowett has been with the company 15 years as assistant-treasurer, and Mr. Ladouceur joined the company in 1951.

Prevent Fire Now at Home

"Why wait till tomorrow to take the necessary precautions to prevent fire at home", said Mr. James McIsaac, chairman of the Fire Prevention Committee of the Province of Quebec Safety League.

"In the home, as in any establishment, managing is foreseeing and as far as the housekeeper is concerned, foreseeing is to eliminate all possible fire hazards. It is true that some mishaps are unavoidable but shouldn't we continue to do everything possible to prevent the great majority of these which can be avoided by a few words of advice spoken at the right moment?"

The Chief Fire Inspector of the City of Montreal, Mr. James McIsaac recommends a daily check of each room in the house to see if there is not any fire hazards which might cause a disaster. "Without fire prevention, there is no possible happiness at home", he added.

The Newest Look in Five Years

Rosemary Boxer reports the sights and sounds from the glittering fashion salons of Rome, Paris and London, in the October issue of Canadian Home Journal. The newest look in fashion in five years, says Mrs. Boxer, is the egg-shape.

The egg-shape, as its name implies, is designed to produce an overall oval outline. Shoulders are dropped below their natural position, and draping, seaming and hemlines always curve towards the body, Mrs. Boxer reports.

And that's not all! There are very strong indications of more leg for the months to come. The new oval shape demands it, says Mrs. Boxer, and hemlines are being hoisted as high as 18 inches. The hemlines in this collection hovered between the knee bone and mid-calf. Most of the designers, with the notable exception of Christian Dior, are in favour of higher hemlines.

For both daytime and evening wear, the EGG is finding favour with European women, "because it's flattering to all figure types," reports Mrs. Boxer.

You can see the glamorous pictures of these new fashions, and read Mrs. Boxer's fun filled article, "The Egg Shapes the Future of Fashion", in the October issue of Canadian Home Journal, now on sale at all newstands.
